Intergenerational Program Updates

February 10, 2014
Area Plan Goals

The Intergenerational Coordinator will support implementation of annual Intergenerational Games designed to increase mutual understanding and respect between generations and to promote lifelong healthy and active behaviors. The Intergenerational Coordinator will document the participation of older adults and youth in the events, and track impacts of the events through evaluation surveys.
The Games are all about the relationships formed
Games Expansion
The Intergenerational Coordinator will collaborate with local community-based organizations, government agencies, and other community partners in order to facilitate the implementation of two new intergenerational programs annually. Programs implemented will be recorded and documented by the Intergenerational Coordinator.
Jump Start Grants
AIS Intergenerational staff will support and promote the development of an intergenerational coalition, whose membership would include current intergenerational service providers, in order to gain knowledge and build capacity through shared projects. This coalition would also promote and encourage groups to meet community needs and solve social concerns through intergenerational approaches.
Implement the “Five & Fit” Program in conjunction with Temple University at two pre-school sites in San Diego. The outcome will be measured by the initiation of the program to utilize older adults to educate pre-school students and their families about healthy eating.
