

2023 Activity Center Map Update | Navigation and Commenting

The Activity Center Map has been updated and is now available for review. Please visit the following website to review the updated map: <https://marc-gis.maps.arcgis.com/apps/webappviewer/index.html?id=948661000b344dd2a1456f34f7d19b8>

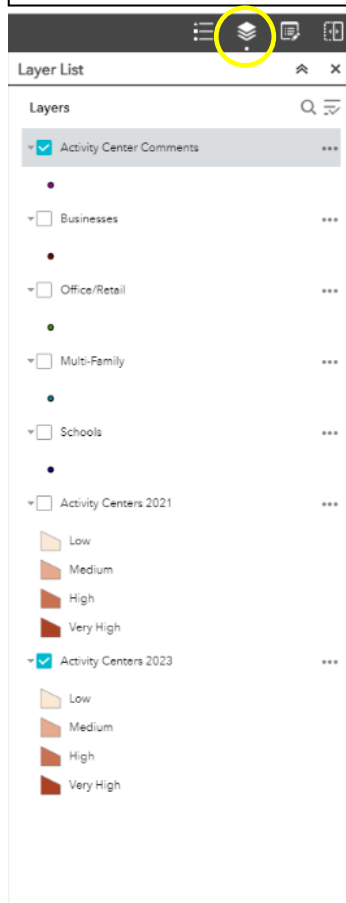

The document, Activity Center 2023 Methodology, provides an outline of the methodology process along with details regarding the data that was utilized for the update. Some tips for navigating the map are as follows:

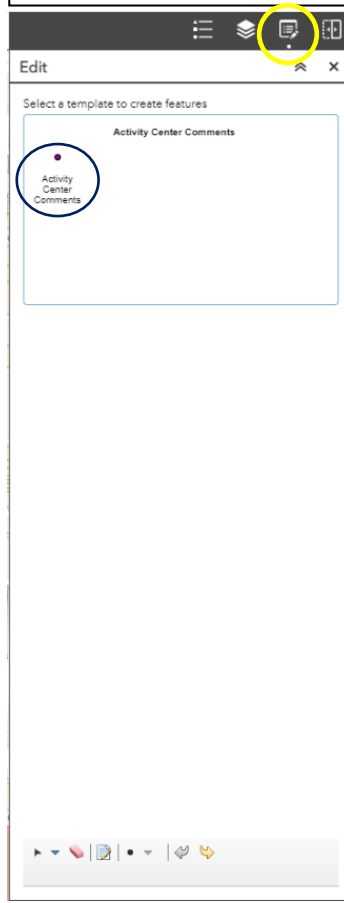

The first icon in the header allows you to see the legends for the visible layers. It will display a dot centered underneath the selected icon.

The second icon in the header allows you to see the available layers list. If the box in front of a layer name has a blue checkmark it is visible. To make a layer the active layer, it will be highlighted with a gray band.

The third icon in the header allows you to make comments on the map. Make sure the Activity Center Comments layer is active (gray band and blue check box). You must click on the dot to activate the option (circled), then click on the map.

The final icon in the header allows you to make a slider bar visible. Turn on both the 2021 map and 2023 map to slide back and forth to compare the maps. The 2021 data is on the left side, 2023 is on the right side.
